On 15th June 2005, the Right to Information Act 2005 was passed by the Parliament and came into force on 12th October 2005. Under the provisions of this Act, any citizen of India may request information from a "public authority" (a body of Government or "instrumentality of state"). It mandates replying expeditiously or within 30 days. The Act also requires every public authority to computerize their records for wide dissemination and proactively provide certain categories of information so that citizens need minimal recourse to formally request information.

Modern College of Computer Science & Information Technology, Aurangabad (MCSIT), has been declared a "Public Authority" under this Act, as part of the implementation of the Right to Information Act, 2005. The Act requires organizations defined as "Public Authorities" to make information available to the public and ensure transparency and accountability in their operations. Some provisions of this Act came into effect immediately upon its implementation.

An officer has been designated as the Public Information Officer (PIO) in accordance with the Right to Information Act 2005. The PIO shall perform the duties and responsibilities as stipulated under the Act. This information will be made available to the public through the website. The structure and functions of the RTI are available on the website.
